HOW TO PREVENT ADULTERATION.

It is so easy to adulterate milk with water, cream with milk, and abstract cream from milk sold as unskimmed milk, that the public should know where the change in quality is likely to occur.

First—the farmer can either put water in his milk, skim his night's milk, or keep back the strappings from the cows. Second—the milk or cream can be tampered with on the delivery wagon by the driver. And last, but not least—the domestic servants can reduce the quality of the cream with milk or the milk with water.

We claim that our method of control is now so thorough, that with the assistance of our customers we locate the point at which the adulteration takes place. The milk received from each farmer is tested by our chemists every day to prevent the farmers from imposing upon us. Samples of milk and cream are taken every day in the street from the delivery wagons by assistant inspectors and tested by our chemists to prevent the drivers from adulterating milk or cream. And samples are taken from the houses of customers and tested by our chemists to find out if the servants adulterate the milk or cream. In addition to this, our assistant inspector is required to go into not less than fifteen houses every day to have a paper signed by the customer, asking if there is any cause of dissatisfaction. This is done to control the assistant inspector.

When a complaint is made, we send the assistant inspector to the house of the party complaining, from which a sample is taken and brought to the laboratory, and the result of the analysis is mailed to the customer. If the milk or cream is up to our standard nothing more is done, but if it is not the assistant inspector goes to the locality and watches for the driver; when the driver reaches the customer he gets on the wagon and takes sample of milk or cream for the purpose of comparison with the sample or samples taken from the house from two to three hours later. If the sample taken from the house is poorer than sample taken from wagon, we know the servant is to blame. If both samples are poor we compare them with samples taken when the milk arrives from the farmer, and if poorer than such sample we know the driver is to blame.

There is one point of danger that can only be met by the careful attention of the customer. The driver can adulterate his cream with milk while in the act of delivering it. Our inspector can only control the quality of the cream in the cream can. Customers are advised to see that the cream is taken out of the cream can in their presence when being delivered.

When we commenced this system of control, May, 1883, we had 800 families; we have May 1, 1884, 1,400. This speaks volumes for our system. With the assistance of the public we can guarantee pure wholesome milk.

This is no toxic experiment. The idea of controlling the quality of milk and cream bought and delivered by a dealer through a chemical laboratory was originated by the Great Aylesbury Dairy Co. of London, and has taken it 17 years to perfect its system. Profiting by their experience, we have enlarged our chemical laboratory, which is a necessary adjunct of our milk business, so as to do general analytical work.

Tammany Hall Openly Avowed for Cleveland and Hendricks.

The Great Irish Meeting and Its Effect on the New York Vote. Mahone's Dependence on Virginia—Ben Butler's "Greatest Effort of His Life."

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, August 30.—The status of Tammany in the present campaign has been definitely fixed, and, on Friday evening next, the Committee on Organization will meet and perfect arrangements for a characteristic Tammany ratification of Cleveland and Hendricks, which means a meeting of fully 25,000 men divided into four factions, filling Tammany Hall and Nelson Hall and the Academy of Music with the overflow stands all along Fourteenth street, Irving Place and Union Square. Senators Bayard, Blackburn and Voorhees, Congressman Carlisle, Cox and Randall, Gen. Roger A. Pryor and John Kelly will be the leading Irish speakers. From this meeting will date the opening of Tammany's campaign. Tammany is undoubtedly the most elaborate political organization in this country, and actually owns 25,000 votes controlled by the assembly districts. Every Tammany voter is known personally to its leader, and week before election, Mr. Kelly can tell within 500 votes just how Tammany will go. Since it has been settled that Tammany would endorse Cleveland, the action of the early leaders to get back into the ranks unscathed have been amusing in the extreme. In the language of that distinguished squire, Register Kelly, "there is no monkeying with the band wagon in Tammany. A man must either do as Tammany tells him or get out. He hasn't any independent middle ground foolishness to stand on."

Senator Mahone last week demanded $10,000 from the Republican National Committee for Virginia and Mr. Elkins flatly refused to give any such sum. Mahone was told to return to Virginia, look the ground over carefully and write the committee as to the lowest possible sum, not to exceed $50, he could get along with. The Senator's letter arrived to-day addressed to Secretary Fessenden and the demand for $10,000 was promptly repudiated. Senator Mahone was in a very despondent mood when he wrote the letter. He says the Democrats are giving money freely, and that unless the National Committee will help with at least $10,000 the State is lost to Blaine. The letter will be considered by the committee and advisory committee to-morrow, but it may as well be said right here that they haven't got $10,000 to spare for any one State. The great Irish meeting on Thursday night brings a feeling bordering on dismay to the local Republican managers, who have all along assured themselves that the Irishmen were for Blaine. There was an effort among the loungers at the headquarters to belittle the meeting as an assemblage of politicians merely, but they evidently didn't believe what they said. The alleged blackmailing letter of Green Raun was freely discussed, but very few people believed it, and the denial of Mr. Raun, printed in the papers here to-day, was unheeded. Somebody has been attempting to play a joke on the ex-Congressman from Illinois at Democratic headquarters. The success of last night's meeting was the topic of conversation to-day. The truth of the matter is that the Democratic managers had little or no confidence in the meeting before it occurred, so vigorously have the opposition yelled. "The Irish are for Blaine!" but everything is changed now, and there is no longer existing a doubt of a very general Irish vote to Cleveland. Advice was received to-day of the organization of 143 Cleveland and Hendricks clubs throughout the country during the past forty-eight hours. A broad smile suffused the faces of the Irving Hall and County Democratic leaders to-day when Mayor Edson formally declared himself in favor of Cleveland and Hendricks, which simply means that John Kelly has got things fixed to suit him and that Mayor Edson will be a candidate to succeed himself. His honor was never known to express a political opinion that had not first been filtered through Mr. Kelly's consent.

Charles A. Dana has consented to preside at the Butler meeting to-morrow night and will introduce Gen. Butler, who will arrive here to-morrow morning. He will hold a levee at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and, in the afternoon, will visit the Greenback Convention at Masonic Hall. The Irish and the convention will be made up of ninety-six delegates, about equally divided in two opposing factions, and the chances are first-class for a splendid row. Moses W. Field of Detroit and Col. T. S. Norton of Chicago are among the leading speakers for the convention and mass meeting. Gen. Butler has announced that his speech to-night will be the greatest effort of his life.

THE VICTORS AT HOME.

Return of the Victors from the Louisville Drill—How They Were Received.
With blue ribbons streaming from their bayonets the Treadway Reserves returned from the Louisville Exposition this morning, where they won the first prize of $4,000 in the competitive drill. The drill, which took place on Thursday, was judged by five regular army officers. The score was not announced, however, until last evening, when the judges read the score, which was as follows: Treadways, 970 (out of a possible 1,000 points); Montgomery Greys of Montgomery, Ala., 869; Indianapolis Light Infantry, 853; Porter Rifles, Nashville, Tenn., 726; Quaque Guards of Little Rock, Ark., 500. The prizes were awarded as follows: Treadways, first prize, $1,000; Montgomery Greys, second prize, $1,000; Indianapolis Light Infantry, $500. After the announcement of the prizes the company gave a short drill and exhibition. The Louisville and Evansville train waited an hour and a half for the victors, who boarded the train with light hearts, giving three cheers and a tiger in praise of Louisville's hospitality, and came rolling home the happiest car-load of passengers in the train.

It was not known when the boys would return until it was too late, only a reception committee was selected to await the arrival of the company. At 7 o'clock this morning several members of the Treadways who did not go to Louisville, assembled at the Union Depot, where they learned that the train was delayed until 10:10. At that hour the Louisville was marked up to 11:03, at which time the train pulled under the main arch. Mr. Dwight, Treasurer of the company in East St. Louis, As they stepped off of the train some time was consumed in hand-shaking and congratulations, when Capt. Comfort, to whose energy the credit of the victory is largely due, gave the order to fall in. Led by a company of drummers, the company marched to the Armory. Capt. Comfort was asked how the company had been treated, and saying "Royally. They could not do more for us than they did, and we want to return our sincere thanks." Lieut. Sinclair said "We had an excellent time, and the judges pronounced our drill the finest competitive drill they had ever seen. The three Southern companies spoke of entering a protest on the ground that Lett Belt and myself were not commissioned officers, having been selected from the ranks. I didn't think there was much ground for protest in this, and they finally decided not to enter protest." Private Johnson was asked concerning the protest and said: "It was very foolish to speak of such a protest, there are very few companies from which the lieutenants could be selected to make a drill of this kind. I think it was rather a tribute to the efficiency of the company."

A more formal reception will probably be arranged for the Reserves than that given this morning. The disposition of the prize will be a subject for consideration at the next meeting.

THEY CAME FROM JERUSALEM.

A Couple of Bedouin Arabs who Astonished Judge Cady.
"Where are you from?"
"Jerusalem."
Judge Cady was entering up a judgment in a case this morning when the next prisoner charged with trespassing stepped up to the bar. Without looking up from the docket, his Honor put the question which received an answer that drew his attention. The defendant was a Bedouin Arab, who spoke very little English, but soon called to his aid another Bedouin, also a prisoner in the dock. They were dressed in the regular Bedouin costume, consisting of a capacious pair of pantaloons, bifurcated at the ankles and supported by the pectoral proprietor of the Mother Hubbard. The morning breezes blowing through the court room, inflated the skin-tights till they looked like a couple of attached balloons, and suddenly subsiding, left the prisoners in a snarl. The judge, looking at the defendants, gave them the answer "You are consents in a snarl race. When asked their names they gave them as Eshel and Jemal. The charge against them was trespassing in a railroad car where they were found asleep last night. After hearing the evidence, which one of them understood fairly well, the court imposed a fine of $10 in each case, but recalled them from the dock to make a further examination after the docket was disposed of. The younger man said that they left Jerusalem four months ago and came to this country, proceeding at once to Texas, where they worked making head and small wood ornaments. When asked by the court why they didn't remain in Galveston, where they had just come from, the younger said, "No, no, no, 'ick' accompanying his answer with a very realistic representation of a Texas break-bone chill. Notwithstanding their short residence in this country, they have both become well educated tramps. They said that they had started out to walk from Galveston, Texas, to Washington, D. C., where they expected to secure transportation back to Holy Land or Alexandria. During their tramp they availed themselves of all the tricks of the impetuous travelers of the soil, sleeping in hot cars, stealing rides on freight trains, begging, etc. After learning their story, Judge Cady granted them a stay on a promise to leave town.

STOLEN STAMPS.

The Post Office at Emporia, Kan., Invaded by Burglars This Morning.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Emporia, Kan., August 30.—The Post Office at this place was broken open at 6 o'clock this morning and robbed of $118 in currency and $1,000 two-cent stamps. The thieves effected an entrance through a rear window and began operations on the safe. They must have come in early in the night, as the safe shows signs of the most elaborate handling previous to the several which occurred at about the hour named. Several persons were partially awaked by the noise, but the robbers made good their escape without attracting attention.

World's Fair Meeting Postponed.

The meeting of the committee of thirteen from the original Colonial States, which was to have taken place next Wednesday at the Southern Hotel, has been postponed on account of the illness and absence from the city of Hon. Robert F. Tansy, chairman. The meeting is to be made arrangements for a World's Fair in 1885, to commemorate the discovery of America by Columbus. The meeting was postponed by Hon. Julius S. Walsh, president of the International Association of Fair and Exposition to take place at the president's office of the Fair Grounds, in this city, Wednesday, October 8, 1884, at 12 m. Mr. Tansy is at Maryland, Mich. in poor health, but it is hoped he will be able to attend the meeting in October.

Of the Usual Sort.

New York, August 30.—The aldermen recently passed a resolution, giving the Broadway Surface Railroad a right to run street cars on Broadway. A million dollars has been offered by another company for the franchise. Mayor Edson vetoed the resolution, and an injunction was obtained restraining the aldermen from passing the measure over the veto. Late last evening the dissolution of the injunction was obtained. At 9 o'clock this morning the aldermen met and passed a resolution over the Mayor's veto and adjourned. Few, excepting themselves, knew the meeting was to be held, and the Controller did not receive the usual notification.

Closing the Post-Office.

The postmaster has issued an order that the Post Office be closed next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. The reason of this is that the Trade Procession, which will pass along Olive street, will necessarily draw a very large crowd, and as the offices of the Post Office are so large, it would be impossible to control the crowd. The order is to close the office at 7 o'clock, and the balance of the time until 9 o'clock, as usual.

Will Try Habeas Corpus.

St. Louis, August 30.—A detachment of United States cavalry, guarding Payne and his Oklahoma boomers, broke camp this morning and started to Fort Gibson, the nearest point where they can obtain government supplies; there to await further orders. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Payne and his men will be presented to Judge Parker in the United States Court to-day by Payne's attorney.

The Storm in New England.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS., August 30.—It has rained eighteen hours continuously. Great damage is done to the roads. The new bridge at Greylock was carried away. Every bridge is gone between Roadboro and Stamford, etc., and $1,000 damage done to the road near Beaver. The river ran over the road for sixty rods. Travel is delayed on the Troy and Boston road by a wash-out north of Pownall.

A Murderer Sentenced.

PATSBURG, Pa., August 30.—Abolom Bowser, who was convicted of murder in the second degree for killing Obediah Haymaker during the Murrysville gas-well riots last November, was refused a new trial this morning, and sentenced to pay the costs of the prosecution and undergo imprisonment for ten years in the Western Penitentiary. The trial of the other defendants will be taken up early next month.

Off for Ireland.

New York, August 30.—Section and Redmond sailed for Ireland to-day. A large number of friends, among whom was Mrs. Farnell, bade them farewell. Mrs. Clemence S. Loxie of the Woman Suffrage party asked them to convey to the Irish party in the House of Commons the thanks of the Woman Suffragists of this country for voting in favor of woman suffrage and assurance of their sympathy with the cause of Ireland.

Deserved.

Mr. George Heuer, for fifteen years assistant in the Olympic box office, has been deservedly promoted by Messrs. Norton & Spaulding to the position of treasurer of the Grand Opera House, succeeding Geo. McManus, who is now managing the Casino. Mr. Heuer is one of the most popular theatrical men in St. Louis, and his hosts of friends will be delighted to hear of his good luck.

Fatal Negligence.

SHAMON, Pa., August 30.—At the inquest on the seven victims of the Greenback mine disaster held to-day, the coroner's jury censured the Reading Company for ignorance, and the negligence of R. C. Luther, mining engineer, and Wm. Booth, division superintendent. It is expected the families of the victims will bring suit against the company.

Violating the Revenue Laws.

Julius Sauer was arrested and taken before U. S. Commissioner this morning, charged with retailing liquor and tobacco without a license. He waived an examination and gave bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance at the November term of City District Court.

Henry Chase gave a similar bond on a charge of selling manufactured tobacco without a license.

A New Cemetery.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., August 30.—The Secretary of State to-day licensed the Rock Point Cemetery Association of East St. Louis; capital stock, $20,000; incorporators, Thomas Winstanley, Joseph Noll and Joseph A. Kurros.

A Year's Work.

MEMPHIS, August 30.—For the year ending to-day, Memphis has received 430,077 bales of cotton. The total value of the year's receipts was $20,000,000. Home consumption for this year was 2,530 bales.

A Feeble Break.

RENNOVATION, Va., August 30.—Three prisoners while attempting to escape last night were caught by Jailer Cook. In the melee Cook lost two fingers.

For Congress.

CLEVELAND, August 30.—Martin G. Faxon has been recommended for Congress by the Twenty-first District Democratic Convention.

To Succeed Himself.

CHICAGO, August 30.—The Republicans of the Third Illinois District have nominated George B. Davis for Congress.

She has taught in our public schools for the past 15 years. She was to have returned next week to accept the same position.

HER GLORY.

How Women May Preserve the Beauty of Their Hair.

Growth of the Chevelure—Causes of Baldness and Its Cure—Depilatories and Their Use—A Few Recipes.

The story goes that the Duchess of Marlborough, wife of the "great Duke," was so incensed at her husband one day that, to spite him, she cut off her luxuriant tresses, which the Duke greatly admired, and threw them in his face. Few women, however, would be willing to sacrifice their hair, which has been called their "glory," for any consideration whatever. So highly do they value it, indeed, that several heroines live in story who have earned immortality by the sacrifice of their locks. Modern cosmetic art gives no small attention to the cultivation of the hair, but, of the whole, singularly little is known concerning its nature and growth.

When a hair is pulled from the head, it may be observed that the end which was implanted in the scalp is larger than the hair itself. This is the bulb or root from which the hair grows. A hair is, in fact, a tube, round in straight-haired persons and flattened in the curly-haired. It is the flatness of the hair which makes it curl.

WOMEN HAVE COINER HAIR.

When the average number of hairs on the head is about 100,000. This calculation is based upon the ascertained fact that a square inch of the head of a person who has an average head of hair contains by actual count 1,000 hairs approximately. In early days the kings of France used to have their hair from the head and bestow it upon one of their attendants as a token of favor. The hair grows from night to ten inches a year. It has been found that it grows faster in the day time than at night and faster in the summer than in winter. Light and sun evidently have an influence on the growth of the hair, as on other vegetable products.

It is the almost universal ignorance concerning the philosophy of the hair that leads people to spend money uselessly on "hair-restorer" and similar nostrums when it is no longer possible to renew its growth. So long as the hair bulbs are healthy the hair can be made to grow. If the roots are dead it is impossible. If the skin has a white, polished appearance, such as one sees on the scalp of old gentlemen, the hair will not grow. The best hair-restorer known is soft tepid water, used with a sponge, and white Castile soap. This keeps the scalp in good order, removes the scales, and stimulates the growth of the hair.

Women frequently suffer from a gradual falling out or thinning of the hair between the ages of 30 and 40. The hair has a dry, brittle look, and the partings become perfectly visible. The young lady who is thus troubled usually becomes alarmed, and after trying every "hair-restorer" she sees advertised, has recourse to the idea that this hair loss is sure to save her from the baldness she fears. The fact is, that the difficulty arises from some definite cause, which, once ascertained, must be attacked. The trouble can be cured. This cause may lie in the condition of the scalp itself, or it may depend upon some disturbed action of some internal organ. Dyspepsia is a frequent cause of loss of hair. The blood may be out of order, or the trouble may be referred to debility. These are the deep-seated causes of the falling out of the hair, and must be referred to before a cure can take place.

If there is a scurfiness present treatment must begin with castile soap and tepid water. After two weeks the following solution should be used. Dissolve in gently with a soft toothbrush, morning and evening. Strong decoction of peruvian bark, one ounce. Brandy, one wine glass full. Glycerine, one tablespoonful. Once every other day, after a shower, following the lotion should be applied in a similar manner. Castor oil, one ounce; ammonia (strong), one ounce; best French brandy, two ounces; rose water, six ounces.

The treatment is recommended by one of the greatest living authorities on the subject. If it is not efficacious, shaving the head may be resorted to. In this case the head should be shaved once a week for three months, and the scalp stimulated daily by cold baths and friction.

The variety of baldness which appears in bare spots, while the hair around them is thick as ever, is often cured by rubbing thoroughly into the spots morning and evening with a little oil of turpentine. This is an ancient remedy.

People generally—those who have a healthy growth of hair—do not pay much attention to the care of the hair and scalp. The head should be given thorough washing once a week; the scalp cannot be healthy unless it is kept clean. After the head is washed the soap should be thoroughly removed with pure water. The best hair wash is: Borax powder, a teaspoonful; soft water, a quart; oil of lavender, sufficient to scent.

There is a precept in hair-dressing which cannot be too widely known. It is this: Wash the scalp, but not the hair; comb the hair, but not the scalp. Doctors disagree as to the advisability of cutting the hair. Men's hair is always kept short, yet it falls out sooner than women's. When the hair splits and withers at the ends it is a sign that the hair is not kept in good condition. The hair should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks.

POWDERING THE HAIR.

It is a fact that the hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks.

How Women May Preserve the Beauty of Their Hair.

Growth of the Chevelure—Causes of Baldness and Its Cure—Depilatories and Their Use—A Few Recipes.

The story goes that the Duchess of Marlborough, wife of the "great Duke," was so incensed at her husband one day that, to spite him, she cut off her luxuriant tresses, which the Duke greatly admired, and threw them in his face. Few women, however, would be willing to sacrifice their hair, which has been called their "glory," for any consideration whatever. So highly do they value it, indeed, that several heroines live in story who have earned immortality by the sacrifice of their locks. Modern cosmetic art gives no small attention to the cultivation of the hair, but, of the whole, singularly little is known concerning its nature and growth.

When a hair is pulled from the head, it may be observed that the end which was implanted in the scalp is larger than the hair itself. This is the bulb or root from which the hair grows. A hair is, in fact, a tube, round in straight-haired persons and flattened in the curly-haired. It is the flatness of the hair which makes it curl.

WOMEN HAVE COINER HAIR.

When the average number of hairs on the head is about 100,000. This calculation is based upon the ascertained fact that a square inch of the head of a person who has an average head of hair contains by actual count 1,000 hairs approximately. In early days the kings of France used to have their hair from the head and bestow it upon one of their attendants as a token of favor. The hair grows from night to ten inches a year. It has been found that it grows faster in the day time than at night and faster in the summer than in winter. Light and sun evidently have an influence on the growth of the hair, as on other vegetable products.

It is the almost universal ignorance concerning the philosophy of the hair that leads people to spend money uselessly on "hair-restorer" and similar nostrums when it is no longer possible to renew its growth. So long as the hair bulbs are healthy the hair can be made to grow. If the roots are dead it is impossible. If the skin has a white, polished appearance, such as one sees on the scalp of old gentlemen, the hair will not grow. The best hair-restorer known is soft tepid water, used with a sponge, and white Castile soap. This keeps the scalp in good order, removes the scales, and stimulates the growth of the hair.

Women frequently suffer from a gradual falling out or thinning of the hair between the ages of 30 and 40. The hair has a dry, brittle look, and the partings become perfectly visible. The young lady who is thus troubled usually becomes alarmed, and after trying every "hair-restorer" she sees advertised, has recourse to the idea that this hair loss is sure to save her from the baldness she fears. The fact is, that the difficulty arises from some definite cause, which, once ascertained, must be attacked. The trouble can be cured. This cause may lie in the condition of the scalp itself, or it may depend upon some disturbed action of some internal organ. Dyspepsia is a frequent cause of loss of hair. The blood may be out of order, or the trouble may be referred to debility. These are the deep-seated causes of the falling out of the hair, and must be referred to before a cure can take place.

If there is a scurfiness present treatment must begin with castile soap and tepid water. After two weeks the following solution should be used. Dissolve in gently with a soft toothbrush, morning and evening. Strong decoction of peruvian bark, one ounce. Brandy, one wine glass full. Glycerine, one tablespoonful. Once every other day, after a shower, following the lotion should be applied in a similar manner. Castor oil, one ounce; ammonia (strong), one ounce; best French brandy, two ounces; rose water, six ounces.

The treatment is recommended by one of the greatest living authorities on the subject. If it is not efficacious, shaving the head may be resorted to. In this case the head should be shaved once a week for three months, and the scalp stimulated daily by cold baths and friction.

The variety of baldness which appears in bare spots, while the hair around them is thick as ever, is often cured by rubbing thoroughly into the spots morning and evening with a little oil of turpentine. This is an ancient remedy.

People generally—those who have a healthy growth of hair—do not pay much attention to the care of the hair and scalp. The head should be given thorough washing once a week; the scalp cannot be healthy unless it is kept clean. After the head is washed the soap should be thoroughly removed with pure water. The best hair wash is: Borax powder, a teaspoonful; soft water, a quart; oil of lavender, sufficient to scent.

There is a precept in hair-dressing which cannot be too widely known. It is this: Wash the scalp, but not the hair; comb the hair, but not the scalp. Doctors disagree as to the advisability of cutting the hair. Men's hair is always kept short, yet it falls out sooner than women's. When the hair splits and withers at the ends it is a sign that the hair is not kept in good condition. The hair should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks.

The fact is, that the difficulty arises from some definite cause, which, once ascertained, must be attacked. The trouble can be cured. This cause may lie in the condition of the scalp itself, or it may depend upon some disturbed action of some internal organ. Dyspepsia is a frequent cause of loss of hair. The blood may be out of order, or the trouble may be referred to debility. These are the deep-seated causes of the falling out of the hair, and must be referred to before a cure can take place.

If there is a scurfiness present treatment must begin with castile soap and tepid water. After two weeks the following solution should be used. Dissolve in gently with a soft toothbrush, morning and evening. Strong decoction of peruvian bark, one ounce. Brandy, one wine glass full. Glycerine, one tablespoonful. Once every other day, after a shower, following the lotion should be applied in a similar manner. Castor oil, one ounce; ammonia (strong), one ounce; best French brandy, two ounces; rose water, six ounces.

The treatment is recommended by one of the greatest living authorities on the subject. If it is not efficacious, shaving the head may be resorted to. In this case the head should be shaved once a week for three months, and the scalp stimulated daily by cold baths and friction.

The variety of baldness which appears in bare spots, while the hair around them is thick as ever, is often cured by rubbing thoroughly into the spots morning and evening with a little oil of turpentine. This is an ancient remedy.

People generally—those who have a healthy growth of hair—do not pay much attention to the care of the hair and scalp. The head should be given thorough washing once a week; the scalp cannot be healthy unless it is kept clean. After the head is washed the soap should be thoroughly removed with pure water. The best hair wash is: Borax powder, a teaspoonful; soft water, a quart; oil of lavender, sufficient to scent.

There is a precept in hair-dressing which cannot be too widely known. It is this: Wash the scalp, but not the hair; comb the hair, but not the scalp. Doctors disagree as to the advisability of cutting the hair. Men's hair is always kept short, yet it falls out sooner than women's. When the hair splits and withers at the ends it is a sign that the hair is not kept in good condition. The hair should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks. The hair of the face should be cut every two or three weeks.
